NOTES AND COMMENTS

"Give Us a Rest"—What People Feel Like Saying About the Irish Question.

Liverpool's Commercial Greatness Menaced Both by Sea and Land.

During the last week or two Hawarden has been the pleasant scene of a series of informal council meetings. Sir William Harcourt was among the earlier visitors and he departed with authority, possibly only more or less reluctantly granted to promulgate in Wales the gospel of the disestablishment of the Welsh church. Although, politically speaking, Mr. Gladstone is the idol of the Nonconformists he is himself heart and soul a churchman, and he may be trusted not willingly to desert his friends, and not recklessly to pull down the pillars of ecclesiastical authority. The Anglican church has in him one of its strongest supporters, and behind a sometimes frowning Providence there is always to be found a smiling face. Sir William Harcourt was succeeded at Hawarden by Lord Granville, Lord and Lady Ripon and Mr. John Morley. From a theological point of view the house party was an interesting one. Lord Ripon and Mr. Morley, as Catholic and Agnostic, represented the extremes of faith and unbelief, while Lord Granville no doubt served as a pleasant and convenient half-way house. Mr. Morley departed on Saturday night but Lord Granville walked to church with the ex-premier, while Lord and Lady Ripon were complaisant enough to drive with Mrs. Gladstone and courteously listen to their host while he read the lessons for the day.

Immediately after these consultations arrangements were made for a large Liberal gathering at Southport, which was to be addressed by Mr. Gladstone. As there appeared to be no particular reason for such a meeting at that particular time and place it was only natural to regard it as the outcome of the Hawarden councils and as a specially created opportunity for more definite utterances on the Irish question. All parties looked expectantly towards Southport, but, to the surprise of all, no sketch whatever was given of any future Home Rule bill. On the contrary that part of the programme for the coming parliamentary campaign which dealt with other Liberal measures was emphasized, and the Irish question was quietly shelved, or at any rate, accorded no prominence. In truth, perhaps, as Mr. Gladstone has already said, it may pass the wit of man to devise a scheme which shall satisfy all sections of the Home Rule party. Mr. Gladstone, himself, still clings to the vital principle of his first bill, namely, the exclusion from Westminster of the Irish members and the creation of a practically independent parliament at Dublin. The bulk of his English supporters, however, will not hear of this and Mr. Gladstone is supposed by them to have expressed his willingness to concede the point. But the authority for this supposed concession is extremely vague. The practical difficulties in the way are very great. If Ireland is to continue to be represented in the Imperial parliament equally with England, Scotland and Wales only such local self government can with justice be extended to Ireland as can be given to other parts of the United Kingdom, and a parliament with such attenuated powers would not satisfy the demands of the Irish National party. Meanwhile people everywhere are growing a little wearied of the Irish question, and as "the flowing tide is with us" it may have been decided at Hawarden that it is best to go with the current.

There has been an interesting controversy this week on the origin of the well known sobriquet "Soapy Sam," which, all the world knows, was applied to the late Bishop Wilberforce. Of course, the plain and obvious meaning is that it properly described his smooth and plausible speech. The Bishop himself, however, overhearing the question asked one day, gave a more characteristic explanation and declared that it was applied to him because he was so often in hot water and always came out with clean hands. The controversy in the Times this week has brought forth a much more matter-of-fact explanation from Mr. Edmund Venables. He relates that a friend of his was one day present at a Cudderdon college festival, and walking to the farther end of the chapel to see the effects, looking westwards he was dismayed to perceive in floral decorations over the respective stalls of the Bishop of Oxford at the right of the entrance, and of the principal of the college, the Rev. Alfred Pott, on the left, the initials "S. O. A. P." "Some enemy hath done this," he exclaimed to his companion, who was equally disconcerted at so public a suggestion of the already current nickname. According to prevalent gossip this Rev. Mr. Pott was supposed to be a suitor for Miss Wilberforce's hand. The Rev. Mr. Pye, mother of the bishop's chaplains, who also a suitor, and the bishop is reported to have humorously remarked that, "it was doubtful whether his daughter would be baked or boiled?" Eventually the former proved her lot and she became Mrs. Pye and not Mrs. Pott.

Liverpool's commercial greatness, which depends upon her importance as a seaport, is being simultaneously menaced both from land and sea. The Manchester Ship Canal, which will enable the biggest vessels to carry their cargoes of cotton into docks in the very heart of the manufacturing districts, and discharge their freight thirty miles inland, is in course of construction and the work is proceeding rapidly and successfully. But perhaps a more serious menace to Liverpool is the determination of one of the great ocean lines of steamers to run some of its ships to a new port. This week, for the first time, the City of Rome of the Anchor line called at Milford Haven and landed a large proportion of her passengers there. The new route is very favorably spoken of and it is said that passengers travelling by it can get to London before they would be able to leave Liverpool by the old route. The distance from Milford to London is 285 miles as compared with 201 miles from London to Liverpool and the quickest time in which the later journey is done is four and a half hours, while the ordinary express train takes five hours. It is found that since the completion of the Severn tunnel the journey from Milford to London can be accomplished in six hours and seven minutes, but the extra hour and a half occupied by the land journey must be set against the time saved in steaming up St. George's Channel and the Mersey. The last few hours of the voyage are always the most tedious, for owing to the Channel fogs and the difficult Mersey bar navigation is awkward and progress is necessarily slow. It may be a matter of surprise to some that the splendid expanse of almost land-locked water which forms the haven at Milford has not been utilized before now. The reason is a very simple one. The docks are only just finished and in working order. The company which has constructed them has had many difficulties to contend against but now that they are finished they may be compared with any in the country. There is a graving dock over 700 feet long, there are miles of quays, and a railway runs close to the landing stage. As far as passenger traffic and the mails are concerned Milford possesses most important advantages. But owing to its situation at the south-western extremity of Wales Milford is cut off by large intervening tracts of pastoral land from the great manufacturing centres of England and cannot therefore, for many years at any rate, become so convenient a port as Liverpool for the cotton, timber and grain of America. Hence, as a cargo port, it is not likely to be able to compete with Liverpool. There is more to be feared from the ship canal as far as freight is concerned.

The Brighton election has resulted in a great success for the Liberal Unionists. Their candidate, Mr. Gerald Loder, celebrated his twenty-eighth birthday on the polling day and received congratulations on both events from the Primrose Dames who worked so enthusiastically on his behalf. These energetic ladies were perhaps Sir Robert Peel's strongest antagonists for they appealed more successfully than he to the popular spirit of the gay watering-place which it was supposed his well known social qualities would enlist in his behalf. But his personal charms and flowers of speech fell short of theirs and he has had to yield the palm of victory to them. The ladies had other support than that which arose from the somewhat evanescent and fluctuating sentiments of the Brighton electors proper. They were able from the first to rely upon a solid contingent of nearly 2000 Londoners, who merely reside in Brighton, and whose chief interests are centred in London, and who may safely be reckoned upon to vote with the Conservatives. The Gladstonians may console themselves with the thought that they have fought gallantly with great odds against them, and that though they have failed to win the seat they have reduced the Conservative majority from 3000 to 2000. With that result they may rest content. If they have not won they have not lost. They may still claim that the flowing is with them, even if it did not flow fast and strong enough to float Sir Robt. Peel with a safe seat in the House of Commons. SPECTATOR.

RACING AROUND THE WORLD

Two Newspaper Women Trying to Break the Record for the Trip.

New York, Nov. 19.—When Nellie Bly announced her intention of making the tour of the world in seventy-five days, the proprietors of the Cosmopolitan magazine employed Miss Elizabeth Bisland, a newspaper woman, to go the opposite way around and beat Nellie's record. Miss Bisland is now on her way to San Francisco, and will there take the steamer for China.

Miss Bisland is a worker on the Cosmopolitan. She started for San Francisco on fifteen minutes notice, and will sail from San Francisco on the Oceanic next Thursday. She expects to reach Yokohama December 11 and Hongkong six days later by a special steamer. From China she will go to London and thence will return to New York, arriving here, according to her plans, January 25. If she succeeds in doing this in seventy-two days she will make the fastest trip on record, and have time to rest before she has to welcome home her dashing rival.

A BLOODLESS CHANGE

From a Monarchy to a Republic —The Sun Sets on One Form and Rises on the Other.

Emperor of Brazil Pushed Off His Throne—Has the Republic Come to Stay?

London, Nov. 18—The new Brazilian government has issued a manifesto announcing that the monarchy has been abolished. Various provinces have sent assurances of support to the new regime. The former prime minister has been arrested. The emperor will be treated with the greatest consideration.

The Brazilian cabinet has been organized as follows: President, without a portfolio, Dorada da Fonseca; minister of the interior, Aristide Lolis; foreign affairs, Equintin Boyovurs; finance, Dr. Barboza; justice, Campas Salles; navy, Admiral Vanderholts; agriculture, Demitres Ribern.

General da Fonseca held command of the province of Minas Gersee. He was recently punished for insubordination.

The chamber of deputies has been dissolved, and the council of state has been abolished.

Public opinion appears to be in favor of a peaceful trial of the new form of government. Everything is quiet.

The minister of marine was not killed, as reported yesterday, but seriously wounded by rebel soldiers.

The provisional government has guaranteed protection to the members of the imperial family. The emperor is at his summer palace at Petropolis, twenty-five miles north of Rio Janerio. All business in the city is suspended, but there is no danger to life or property.

Buenos Ayres (via Galveston), Nov. 18—Dispatches from Brazil say: The manifesto of the provisional government declares that the object of the new regime is to promote peace and liberty. Permanency of the Senate will be maintained, and all anterior legal acts will be recognized by the new government.

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 18.—The name adopted by the new government is the Republic of the United States of Brazil. The new ministers have adopted the United States flag with the Brazilian colors for the national emblem. The change of government has been made practically without bloodshed, and with the slightest possible amount of disorder. After the first excitement caused by the declaration of the army and navy in favor of the republic, perfect order was maintained. The imperial ministers retired peacefully when informed of their deposition and that a provisional cabinet was formed. The great majority of both army and navy favored the establishment of a republic. The provisional government's first proclamation announced the abolition of royalty.

Washington, Nov. 18—The members of the Brazilian legation are still without information direct from their own country regarding the situation there. They were in hopes of receiving some news today, but none came, and their only intelligence was derived from the press telegrams.

Secretary Blaine said this evening that he had received a dispatch from Rio de Janeiro, and that it simply confirmed the press dispatches. It stated in substance that the army and navy were on the side of the insurgents; that a provisional government had been formed, and that the Emperor was a prisoner in his palace.

A Brazilian thoroughly conversant with the affairs of his country, and well qualified to speak with regard to the situation in Brazil, said this evening: "I believe the movement has occurred and the capital is in the hands of the insurgents, but I do not believe the new government has come to stay. We need more information about the personnel of the government to believe in it. I think it is a military movement supported by thousands of civilians, and that when the provinces are heard from a reaction will take place. The names of those announced at the head of affairs are all republicans, and they are not men of high standing. The ministry is mostly composed of lawyers and men of the press. I do not believe that they will have the confidence of the people. If we could but see some of the old leaders of Brazilian affairs in the movement it would be different, but there is not one who is not already a recognized republican.

"A popular movement in favor of the Republicans could not spring up in a night and without any warning. The last elections showed that the Republican party returned only two members, and the elections were fair and open. That does not show any sentiment favoring a republic. The insurgents have captured the capitol. The head of the nation and army and navy is within their control, and all means of communication. There is undoubtedly censorship of the cable service. I would like to hear what the other side is doing, and something from the provinces. If you were an American in Rio and heard that by a sudden and able move a garrison and some of the citizens had seized the departments, imprisoned the president and cabinet and set up a cabinet, you should want to know what Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states were doing before being convinced that the new government would last. I believe that the movement is a military one, and not supported by more than a thousand civilians."

"It would be easy for the army and navy, by surprise, when the officers of the government were peacefully and quietly attending to their business, to capture the city of Rio, secure through the navy control of outside communication, and imprison the emperor."

"But," it was suggested, "if the people are favorable to the Emperor how can they maintain control?"

"That," was the reply, "is just what is lacking, support. Although he is imprisoned, he is still Emperor, and the provinces can declare for him. I think the provinces will declare war against the capital, and the situation will resemble that in France at the time of the Paris commune.

There are in the navy about 5500 officers and sailors, not all of whom are in Rio. Many are abroad. The army has about the same strength, and with about 2000 civilians upholding them it would make 15,000 men, and I do not believe the movement has any greater strength. It is true the dispatches say some provinces have declared for the republic, but this all came from Rio and those who have seized the government."

Of the new cabinet members two are journalists, President Deodore da Fonseca and Minister of War Benjamin Constant, are soldiers, and the remaining three members are lawyers. Senator Quintina Boayuve is looked upon here as perhaps the leader in the revolutionary movement.

London, Nov. 18.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says: The republican council at Rio Janeiro decided that the anniversary of the French revolution was a most propitious occasion on which to proclaim the republic.

Lima (via Galveston), Nov. 18.—The latest advices from Rio de Janeiro, dated November 16, 9:55 p.m., are to the effect that the province of Bahia is opposed to the revolution. Viscount Ouro Preto, ex-minister of the interior, and Senor Maisunck, a banker, have been arrested. The emperor is looked on with suspicion. The provisional government has abolished the monarchy.

The revolutionary commission addressed a message to the Emperor, telling him to leave the country in twenty-four hours. The Emperor acknowledged this and leaves by the packet Alogoas, accompanied by an ironclad. The Brazilian government will give the Emperor a certain amount to live in Europe. The republic is a certainty, and great enthusiasm prevails.

London, Nov. 18.—A dispatch from Rio de Janeiro says: Dom Pedro has departed from Brazil. He sailed direct for Lisbon. Before his departure he was formally notified of his deposition. At the same time he was informed the civil list would be continued.

Brussels, Nov. 18.—The Independence Belge has a dispatch from Lisbon, saying: The overthrow of the Brazilian monarchy is regarded as definite. The Portuguese people sympathize with the Brazillians. Similar events are possible in Portugal.

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 18.—On the morning of the revolution the city awoke to hear the proclamation of the republic of the United States of Brazil. Senors Fonseca, Contant and others proceeded to Petropolis on Friday morning and informed the Emperor that he was dethroned. Dom Pedro was calm and dignified and listened quietly to what the visitors said. Senor Fonseca acted as spokesman and said: "Brazil has advanced in civilization enough to dispense with a monarchy. The country is grateful for the Emperor's patriotism, but has insisted on a republic." Dom Pedro replied with dignity, declining to abdicate. He would yield to force but would not renounce the throne voluntarily. A man-of-war was ready, with steam up, to take them off. The captain received his instructions as soon as the Emperor and his party were on board. The orders informing the captain of his route was sealed, but it is supposed his destination is Lisbon. It is reported the impending revolution was known to several financial houses in Vienna two days prior to its occurrence.

THAT DRAWBRIDGE.

The Railway Committee Decide in Favor of Westminster.

Special to THE TIMES.]

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—At meeting of the railway committee of the Privy Council to-day, the committee refused to grant the Canadian Pacific Railway an eighty-foot drawbridge on the Fraser river near New Westminster. They, however, granted a one hundred-foot drawbridge after the plans had been furnished the department. It will be remembered Premier Robson gave a letter to the C. P. R. stating eighty feet were sufficient, but the city of New Westminster objected and the committee have sustained their objections.

FAST MAIL SERVICE.

The Initial Train Over the Union Pacific Starts.

Omaha, Nov. 19.—The new fast mail service over the Union Pacific was inaugurated yesterday, the first train for the west under the revised schedule leaving Omaha at 6:15 p.m., promptly on time. The schedule of the train reduces the time between the Missouri river and the coast twelve hours. Assistant General Superintendent Pratt, of the railway mail service, and other prominent government officials accompanied the train on its initial trip.

FIGHTING FOR A SWEETHEART

Young Men Meet in the Ring and the Victor Gains the Girl's Hand.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—For nearly a year past Miss Annie Labauche, a clerk in the People's Store, has been receiving the attention of two well-known young men of the same town named Elmer Gross and Frank Anderson. The former is an undertaker and the later the proprietor of a grocery. Miss Labauche was unable to decide which of her two lovers she liked best and affairs were brought to a crisis on Wednesday evening last.

Both of the young men attended prayer meeting and after the service they quarreled as to which one should escort the fair one home. Miss Lebauche took charge for herself and said she would not allow either of them to accompany her home. The next day Miss Labauche's brother told the rival lovers that they would have to fight it out as to which was the best man.

Both the men agreed to settle the matter as proposed. Anderson wanted to fight a duel but Gross declined on the ground that he was not accustomed to fire-arms. Accordingly, the men met in an old abandoned cellar near Avondale on Saturday night. Two locomotive headlights lit up the ring. Seven hard rounds were fought and Gross came out an easy victor.

The girl's brother, who witnessed the fight, placed Gross in a carriage, and took him triumphantly to the home of his sweetheart. The latter received him with open arms, dressed his wounds and said he would be her husband.

Death.

Capt. Angus Grant died at New Westminster at 9 o'clock this morning. Deceased was a native of the U. S. and 60 years of age.

The Louise.

The Princess Louise arrived from Westminster at three o'clock. Between James Island and Ten-Mile Point a gale was struck, which Capt. McCulloch says was strong enough for anyone. Sixty-five cattle were landed at Cadboro Bay.

The Man Died.

The following item from a Dakota paper is respectfully submitted to the attention of provincial editors. It contains a new idea in vituperation: "A man living about ten miles from here died from poisoning on Monday afternoon. It seems he ate a lunch that had been wrapped in a copy of our loathed and disgusting contemporary, and it killed him. Let others beware."

Dr. Kent Expelled.

At a meeting of the board of management of the Y. M. C. A. of Westminster, held yesterday, a report was presented recommending that Dr. Kent be expelled from the Association, and that a resolution be passed expressing the continued confidence of the management in Mr. Davie.

The report was unanimously adopted, and the recommendation therein contained acted upon. The charge was for misconduct.

—A. Maybee, merchant, Warkworth, writes: "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public "one of the best medicines they have ever used;" it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throat, &c., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."

STANLEY AT HOME.

He Arrives Safely After Passing Through the Perils of Sea and Land.

Edmund Yates Takes the Queen's Private Apartments Into Consideration.

New York, Nov. 19.—Edmund Yates' London cable to the Tribune says the redecoration of the corridor of Windsor Castle has just been completed at a cost of several thousand pounds. The work has been constantly in progress all the year. The design, which was chosen by Princess Beatrice, is of sage green. In the corridor are a large number of splendid cabinets, many of which are filled with china, one set of Rose du Barre being valued at £30,000. At the upper end of the corridor is a bust of Gordon, close to which is his pocketbible enclosed in crystal. The guests for the Queen's dinner party invariably assemble in the corridor Oak room, where Her Majesty lunches and dines, opens from it, and close to the door hangs Professor Angelies celebrated portrait of Beaconsfield, next to it being a curious portrait of George the Second.

The Queen's private apartments are in the immediate vicinity of the corridor and three drawing rooms, white, green and red, open from it. The decoration of the corridor is the most important work of the kind that has been carried out in the private apartments since the grand dining room at the northeast corner of the castle was splendidly re-decorated in cream and gold just before the jubilee. This room contains magnificent carved sideboard of rosewood and also a gold punch bowl and ladle for which George IV. paid 10,000 guineas.

Prince Victor, of Hohenlohe Langeburg, has nearly completed a life size marble statue of the Prince of Wales, which he is executing for the Royal College of Music.

The King of Denmark has just completed a thorough restoration of the well known castle of Rosenberg at Copenhagen, wherein crown jewels, pictures, state papers and many objects of art are deposited and admirably arranged.

ASKING FOR MERCY.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—A deputation consisting of Archdeacon Dixon and others urged the Minister of Justice to-day to commute the sentence of death on Harvey the Guelph murderer, on the ground that Harvey was insane when he committed the deed. The minister merely promised to consider the matter.

ACCEPTED RESIGNATIONS.

Regina, Nov. 19.—Dr. Brett announced to the Assembly yesterday that the advisory council had resigned and that Governor Royal had accepted their resignations.

WHAT A PASTOR SHOULD DO.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Yesterday the Ministerial Association discussed the advisability of employing evangelists. The general opinion was that a good pastor ought to do his evangelistic work. A paper on this subject was read by the Rev. Dr. Parker.

HENRY GEORGE IN TORONTO.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Henry George lectured here to-night to a large audience, including many prominent politicians, preachers and business men. The lecturer's views were favorably received and the Anti-Poverty Society anticipate a large increase in membership.

STORMY MEETING.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—A stormy meeting of the vestry of St. George's church was held last evening to discuss the question of singing the "Kyrie" in the church and chanting of the Psalms. These innovations are held by many prominent members of the church to be introduced by Dr. Jones and apt to lead to Roman Catholicism. Several resolutions and amendments were moved, but it was ultimately decided by a vote of 52 to 46 that the singing of the "Kyrie" and the chanting of the Psalms should be done at such times and occasions as the rector should see fit and in the best interests of the congregation. On the side of the High Churchmen was Justice Gwynne, and against was pitted Chief Justice Ritchie. A split is sure to take place.

CHILDREN ROASTED.

Quebec, Nov. 19.—Particulars have been received of the roasting of the four children in Kamouraska county. Mrs. Scrois, mother of the children, left the house to call on a neighbor, and in her absence a spark from the stove set fire to a heap of chips close by. Instantly the house was ablaze and no one could approach it on account of the heat. The children were burned to cinders. A fine Newfoundland dog succumbed to the flames while trying to save the children.

THEY LIKE MANITOBA.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—A. J. McMillan, Manitoba government agent here, reports that quite a colony of Virginians from near Charlotteville are moving next spring into Manitoba where they will engage in farming. Among them are several wealthy tobacco planters, who have bought land and will move northward taking their plantation hands with them. Owing to the failure of the crops for several years it became imperative for Virginians to look for new homes, and the delegates having visited several of the western states and Manitoba to find the most suitable location, reported in favor of the latter.

WHAT MERCIER DID SAY.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—Premier Mercier, who has returned from Baltimore, says that the interview credited to him while there is incorrect. What he did say was that among French and British Canadians there were both annexationists and anti-annexationists, and that the latter were in the majority.

STANLEY'S RETURN.

The Mayor and Aldermen of Ottawa Welcome Them.

Ottawa, Nov. 19—His Excellency the Governor-General, Lady Stanley, and party will arrive in Ottawa this afternoon. It is understood that the mayor and aldermen will meet their Excellencies at the station and present them with an address of welcome.

CHANGE OF NAVAL STATION.

Mr. Gordon, M. P., Proposes Nanaimo or Departure Bay.

Special to THE TIMES.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Gordon, M. P., today waited on Sir John Macdonald and presented him with an application to the effect that if the imperial government intended to look for a harbor for the British navy elsewhere than at Esquimalt harbor, owing to the opposition of the Victoria board of trade and the local government, he would suggest that of Nanaimo harbor or Departure Bay be used instead as here there would be no obstacles placed in the way of the fleet and the harbors were free of rocks and shoals and in every way better adapted for the purpose than Esquimalt harbor.

THE REPUBLIC OF BRAZIL.

The revolution in Brazil, by which one of the most amiable and liberal minded monarchs of this generation has been deposed, is alike remarkable for its suddenness, its thoroughness, and the absence of bloodshed. It has not been generally understood that the Brazilians were dissatisfied with the government of Dom Pedro. He was regarded in the United States, at least, as exemplifying democracy to a degree almost inconsistent with royalty. He had caused the slaves to be liberated, he was in fact diligent in his efforts to bring about salutary reforms. Nevertheless with a man on the throne who had accomplished so much for his empire, who was a progressive man in every sense of the word, the people of Brazil have deliberately chosen a more liberal form of government, and what is more extraordinary still, succeeded in bringing it about without bloodshed. There is nothing like it in the history of revolutions; it is unique in political movements, and whether Brazil has made the change for the better or not she deserves to be congratulated for the peaceful manner of its accomplishment. Probably there would have been sanguinary proceedings only for the attitude of the army, which declared for the revolutionists. Dom Pedro must have had friends. The veriest tyrant that ever reigned has had friends willing to do and die for him, and we may suppose that in the case of so aimable and liberal a monarch as Dom Pedro that he should be able to muster a respectable and even formidable body of adherents. These, however, remained passive. Not an arm was lifted in defence of regal authority, and while of course we find cause for such supine passiveness in the political complexion of the army, we must also suppose that the sentiment of republicanism had permeated the circles closest to the Emperor. But we need not speculate on the causes of this bloodless revolution. The interesting question in regard to it is, was it wise? Is Brazil prepared to embrace republican institutions pure and simple? We doubt it. The masses in Brazil are ignorant. They know nothing of public schools. We question whether they will be able to handle the ballot intelligently, and in the end it is highly probable that an Emperor has been exchanged for an oligarchy. It is to be hoped, however, since the revolution has been accomplished that good will come out of it, and we are bound to say that considering the tact, skill and thoroughness with which the change was wrought, we have a splendid augury for the future of the new Republic.

ROBSON AND THE "WANTS."

The Hon. John Robson is an old resident of British Columbia. He has been identified with the province for not less than a quarter of a century, and further, owing to his having been a public character, bending his energies for the public good, we have the presumption that he of all men best understands what the province needs to drive it forward. The man who has resided a quarter of a century in Victoria, and who during that time has been wholly immersed in dry goods or groceries, or has served a term or two in the council, may be pardoned if the range of his knowledge of provincial needs is circumscribed to city limits. We cannot, however, regard a public man so leniently. Ignorance on his part of public wants is inexcusable, and so it seems to us that the effort of the Premier to make himself acquainted with the "wants" of the province comes too late in the day to serve as a prop to his political fortunes. The fact that the Premier is only just now trying to find out what the province "wants" is an admission of neglect in the past, and we are surprised that the Colonist should vent so compromising an assertion. What has "Honest John" been doing all these years that he is just now finding out what the province "wants?" This is an extraordinary admission and in the light of it we are forced to conclude that he has not been a close reader of The Times. Had he perused this paper with ordinary diligence, he must have ascertained the "wants" of the province several years ago, or, allowing that for obvious reasons he has slurred over the columns of The Times, had he listened to such private information as has been at his command relative to the "wants" of the province, he might have deferred his mission of inquiry to Kamloops indefinitely. There is an old saying to the effect, "better late than never," from which we are made to understand that the person who finally "gets there" is entitled to credit, but taking into consideration the long political career of the Premier, and particularly the fact that the "wants" of the province were as palpable three years ago as they are now, we cannot regard his latest move as other than a demagogic bid for future political support. Mr. Robson finds something for congratulation in the readjustment of the mining laws in the railway belt, which brings them within the jurisdiction of the province. While of course it is a matter of congratulation that this abominably mixed up arrangement has been simplified, and made subject to provincial discretion, we see nothing in it whereon to base a bid for the suffrages of Yale. What has been done was no more than a plain duty, and a simple one at that, and what is a plain duty cannot in good taste be made a subject of boasting. Then, again, the Premier boasts of what has been done to help out the S. & O. railway. The necessity of this railway was pointed out three years ago. The most eminent engineers in the province pronounced favorably to it; it was shown that it would open up a promising country and that it would enable this province to compete successfully against the Americans in supplying the various mining camps on the boundary line, which were being developed. But it has taken the government three years to move in the matter; they have, in fact, in the face of the approaching election made virtue a necessity and now want credit for it. Then again with reference to the Sproat's Landing and Nelson wagon road, a pretty excuse is offered for neglecting to build it. Had it been built two years ago in response to the demand, it would have paid for itself ten times over. And even now the building of the road is made contingent on the failure of a railway being built between the points in question. All this is a shallow excuse for neglect, for which ignorance cannot atone nor the alleged prospect of a railway palliate, and doubtless the electors will so accept it. As to irrigation, in the matter of artesian wells who is responsible for the failure of experiments being pushed this year? Kamloops, we understand is complaining of dull times. Does Kamloops apprehend that such would be the case were it demonstrated that artesian water was practicable? The way the artesian well business has been mismanaged would disgrace school boys, and yet the Premier is making a bid for support on the strength of it. We regard on the whole the Premier's Kamloops speech as a transcendent exhibition of political "gall," and we shall be much surprised if Yale swallows the gilded pill of political artifice which the Premier has so industriously prepared.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The leading Methodist church of Belleville, Ont., has fallen into line, and will discontinue pulpit advertising. In these days of newspapers the pulpit should serve a higher purpose than that of a bulletin board.

Mr. Smalley says that the Daily News appears to have decided to push John Morley as leader in succession to Mr. Gladstone. Hundreds of thousands, says this Gladstonian organ, look to Mr. Morley for guidance in difficulty and for encouragement in conflict only less eagerly than they look to Mr. Gladstone himself.

The first squadron of the new navy left New York yesterday for a cruise in foreign waters that will extend for one year. The squadron was composed of four new entirely completed and equipped ships of war, built wholly of American rolled steel—the Chicago, Boston, Atlanta and Yorktown.

FISHERIES PROTECTION.

Lieut. Gordon Reports Having a Quiet Time of it.

Toronto, Nov. 17—Lieut. Gordon, R.N. commodore of the fisheries protection fleet, arrived at Toronto from Ottawa this morning. He says the season on the whole was a poor one for American seagoers, but extraordinary high prices were obtained for mackerel. During the season there was only one seizure, that of the schooner Mattie Winship. She was fined $2000 for infringement of the fishery laws. Lieut. Gordon says little or no trouble was experienced with American fishermen, as they have come to understand that the regulations must be complied with if they wish to fish in Canadian waters. The American captains are unanimous in desiring a settlement of the present dispute and double the number took out licenses under the modus vivendi than was the case last season.

Fish Buying from Americans.

The dispatch from Port Townsend stating that Fraser River fishermen were in the habit of going into American water to fish for salmon is denied, a well known fishermen stating that it is not so. He says, though, that the cannery steamers go over and buy fish from the American fishermen and Indians. The fishermen of the Fraser would also be very glad to see the business stopped, as very often their sales are stopped by the buying of fish from the Americans.

Single Tax.

The Sydney Liberal Association has adopted the single tax platform, and will assist in the approaching campaign. The people of the colony of Victoria have also signified their intention to do the same. Evidently the feeling is obtaining headway in many parts of the world, and will soon make itself felt.

Commercial, Ranching and Social Conditions—Entertainments.

Distinguished Visitors—'Honest' John's Pilgrimage to the Interior.

A rainy night in the valley, the morning light showing the mountain tops with a slight covering of snow, and a cold chilling wind forecast the approach of winter in the interior. Well, of course, we expect it sooner or later, and even a change in the weather is a break in the monotony with which we have been blessed this autumn. Since the excitement of the ball tournament died away, the inhabitants hereof seem to think that a Rip Van Winkle rest should be entered into, and as far as my observation goes they have thoroughly carried out the idea; though perhaps it was only the natural reaction of so much excitement, the tension being stretched to the utmost limit. However, I trust we are about to shake off this lethargy, socially at least, and endeavor to keep up our well earned reputation of sociability. Meanwhile, matters of business may certainly be classed as stagnant, which generally speaking means no motion, mining ditto, and the cattle trade just enough leaving this point to fill the hungry requirements of the coast beef eaters. Ranchers, of course, are hoping for an open winter, as the bunch grass was almost devoured by the grasshoppers early in the season, leaving the ranges nearly bare of winter feed, which means a corresponding encroachment on the haystack. But as yet the

CATTLE LOOK WELL AND SLEEK.

As regards entertainments or amusements here, we have been fairly well supplied, some, such as Bengough's, being highly appreciated; others, such as an Ethiopian fiasco last week, highly deserving of censure, I was going to say, but will replace censure with decayed hen fruit. I was glad for the taste of Kamloops that such an exhibition was so poorly attended, for it seems to have got into the heads of some eastern bummers that all they have to do in order to strike an El Dorado is to get together a snide company, called, save the mark, talented artists, and securing a cheap rate on the C. P. R., give exhibitions of their histrionic powers at every hamlet on the route, thinking no doubt that the aborigines would consider it quite a treat. We had such a one here during tournament week, and I believe the company came to financial grief in Vancouver, some of the members coming back this way and giving further exhibitions to defray expenses, although at that time the walking was good and tie passes were to be had for the asking.

We were to have had Mr. Villiers to lecture here, but the accident to the Amphion delayed him in Victoria and he was unable to reach here at the appointed time.

as to whether we missed much. My idea is that unless he has improved considerably since his tour in the eastern provinces last spring, we can easily support our disappointment for his non-appearance. I certainly think and have no doubt Mr. Villiers agrees with me that it is much more profitable to deliver lectures at nearly every collection of houses termed villages etc., in this Dominion than to be a steady employee on the Graphic staff, more especially if one can travel d. h. on a train paid for out of Canada's exchequer.

Of course we had His Excellency the Governor-General here, and also of course he was presented with an address signed by Kamloops' leading citizens, and as in duty bound the address teemed with loyalty, patriotism and well wishes. It must have been very gratifying to His Excellency to have received this particular effusion, as just prior to his return trip a telegram was received here asking that the hour of his arrival be not publicly known. Whether this was intended for a snub or was merely ennuism consequent on the reception of such production deponent sayeth not, but merely give the statement as I heard it. Leaving this matter, however, to those more interested than your correspondent, I turn to a subject, or rather an object, that has engrossed our attention for weeks back, to-wit,

THE VISIT OF THE PREMIER

to this town. I understand that he will be here to-morrow and during his stay will address the electors on matters pertaining, I presume, to the public weal. It will be the first opportunity for many here to have the pleasure of listening to the Hon. Mr. Robson's "honest" stirring addresses. It is undoubtedly a forecast on the political horizon of coming elections and leaves no doubt that the honorable gentleman has heard through Yale's representatives that many of the electors are not quite so much in accord with his government as the members residing in the eastern part of the constituency are. There will be a gathering of the faithful, no doubt, but it is also well to remind those most interested that the electoral list of this portion of Yale district has very largely increased in the last four years, and composed of an element who are not accustomed to vote at the wink and nod of the powers that be. Oh yes, gentlemen, tempora mutantur. Still, I am probably predestinating and will say nothing further but patiently, like better people before me, await his coming.

BUSINESS BEING SO DULL,

people are naturally looking for some measures to lighten the time which hangs so heavily on their hands, and for such relief generally look towards amusements. The I.O.O.F. will open the ball with a grand dance on the 21st inst. The St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society were to have had one on their anniversary, the 30th inst, but postponed it till later in the season. The Pioneers' annual dinner on the 5th prox. and the Cattle Association, a gathering about the same time. These, interspersed with private gatherings, surprise parties, etc., tend to make us forget dull times and the old gentleman who carries the sickle. As you know, we have a new judge in our midst and from our midst. Mr. Spinks has gracefully vacated the bar for the bench, the justice for the station, to rule where he has for some considerable time pleaded. Who shall say his pleading was in vain? This change of course permits Mr. Justice Walkem to permanently reside in Victoria, as we have but two assizes held here in the year where his presence is required.

Another sign of coming winter is a few of the old-time placer miners returning after the season's labor. Have not heard what success has attended their efforts, but of their successes and the Premier's visit you shall hear more. ANON.

Concerning the famous

Mason & Risch Pianos

Which the firm are constantly shipping to all parts of the world. That prominent musical authority, Walter E. Wall, Esq. (Fellow of the Royal College of Organists, London, England, and now organist of St. John's cathedral, Denver, Colorado), writes:

After a thorough testing of considerable severity of touch, I can safely say that I am thoroughly satisfied with the fine instrument you have selected for me. In tone and touch I never want a better piano, and shall, as soon as possible, dispose of the Weber Grand I have, to possess one of yours for my own private use.

To-day the instrument had almost a semi-public examination by a skilled piano-tuner who is deeply interested in a firm here who are agents for Steinway, Weber, Knabe, Hardman, Fischer, Sohmer, and a lot of other makers. It received at his hands "a pounding," not a playing, and he said as he finished, "Well, it is impossible to find the slightest fault with it. I think we'll try and get the agency."

Mr. Hall is not the only musician who has changed a piano of one of the noted makers of the United States for one of this firm's celebrated instruments, as the firm have now on hand at their warerooms a very large stock of second-hand pianos, among which are Steinway's, Chickering's, Weber's, Hazelton's, and other first-class makers, which they have taken in exchange for theirs, which fact may be accepted as a fair indication of the merits of a piano which can thus displace those of high-class American manufacture.

EASTERN CANADA

A Yankee in the Canadian Maritime Provinces.

CHARLOTTETOWN TO ST. JOHN'S.

The Fish Figures of P. E. I.—Eastern New Brunswick—Moncton and the "Bore." St. John's Wealth of Shipping—The Double Cascade—Queer Effects of the Tides.

Of the 108,891 people on Prince Edward's Island (in 1881) 47,115 are Catholics, 33,835 Presbyterians, 13,485 Methodists, 7,192 Church of England and 6,236 Baptists, so it is plain that there isn't room for agnosticism enough to worry Governor Macdonald. Nearly all are natives, but the census is taken by blood and race, showing 48,933 Scotch, 25,415 Irish, 21,404 English and 10,751 French—quite an intellectual mixture and one which, by American experience, insures complete toleration. "No intoxicating liquors are sold on the island." So commands the law and so the people report. But of course the law is sometimes evaded on Prince Edward's Island as elsewhere.

CHIEF JUSTICE ALLEN.

It is incidentally interesting to learn that there are still 281 Indians on the island and that they are dying out very leisurely. Perhaps their inability to get liquor may aid in their preservation, for I cannot hear of any other reason for their survival. The Micmacs of the islands and coast region were, and are, somewhat inferior to the Malicetes farther inland, and both are far inferior to the Hurons, Iroquois, etc. Indeed, it seems to be a world wide fact that the fish eating savages are inferior to the inland meat eaters. The word "acadie," or "cadie," meaning "abundance" in the Micmac tongue, is the same as the word "quoddy" of the Malicetes and others—a word terminating Passamaquoddy and other New England names. Though Canadian dealings with the Indians have certainly been far better than American, as the situation was far more favorable, the result has been the same. The Indian is at the bottom of the social scale—about fourteen strata below bed rock—and does not own much of anything that whit men really want.

The fish figures of the island are fascinating. "Seven kinds of fish set before me in one week, and all good—baked, stuffed or broiled on the coals," was the testimony of an American who has been boarding at a farm house this summer. Off the four quarters of the island, so to speak, four kinds of fish predominate—cod, herring and mackerel leading. And this small population in one year captured over 18,000,000 pounds of fish food, though they reckon themselves as "exclusively agricultural," and count fishing as a mere interlude in their lives. Of this amount nearly 4,000,000 pounds is classed as "lobsters preserved in cans," and worth at the place of shipment nearly $500,000. There were also 700,000 cans of mackerel, 44,500 barrels of herring, 12,850 cwt. of plain cod and 35,790 pounds of boneless, about 4,000,000 oysters and 110,000 pounds of "trout and other small fish taken from the streams." I always sympathized with those emigrants who told King Charles II that they wanted to go to New England to "worship God and catch fish." "Fore Gad!" said the king, "it is the apostles' own calling." And I found the fish so delicious that I left the island with regret.

Charlottetown, with some 12,000 inhabitants, lies in the arms of the bay, as it were—that is, between the two "rivers" which put in there and which sweep around so as to give the place a long semi-circular water front. The city has the features of a New England town and a provincial capital. The people have the English taste for flowers and grass plots, and, as the climate is favorable, all the public grounds are very beautiful, especially around the government buildings. These last are, of course, very solid, as in all British colonies. And, in conclusion, I may add before taking the train, that Prince Edward's Island was discovered by Sebastian Cabot on the 24th of June, 1497, and therefore named by him the Island of St. John; that it continued to be so called until islands of St. John became confusingly numerous in her British majesty's dominions, and therefore, in 1799, as a compliment to Edward, duke of Kent, father of her present majesty, it was re-christened; that it was first a mere fishing station, then a military depot, and then a crown colony, according to the advancing grades of provincial dignity in the British system; that it reached the stage of separate government in 1769, and was officially organized on the 7th of July, 1773, when Walter Patterson took his seat as first governor; that it acquired "responsible government" in 1851, when the popular branch (as we say in the United States) first acquired full control of the finances, and that it so continued till July 1, 1873, when it surrendered its nominal independence and its "sovereignty" was merged in that of the Dominion of Canada.

FALL BROOK.

And if I were writing a political essay, I might very appropriately add that the ideas of this smallest of the Canadian provinces bear a curious family likeness to those of Rhode Island, the smallest of the United States, which was the most strenuous of the colonies in asserting its separate sovereignty, and the last of the thirteen to accept the constitution, and which held on to its old English charter long after England herself had outgrown the ideas of the times which gave that charter being. And as the moral of my essay I might draw an instructive comparison between independent little states and "spunky" little men; but as it is, seeing that I have, in those two sentences, given the reader what jockeys call "an almighty long heat," I beg leave to suddenly change the subject by crossing to the main land of New Brunswick.

We reached it by an interesting railroad and a delightful steam across the straits, and landed at Shediac, where I suffered a disappointment. Eastern New Brunswick certainly is not attractive. The landscape is depressingly monotonous, the soil as the plow exposes it is white, and the people are very "Frenchy." I am told that it is much the case along all the eastern side of the province, and indeed I discovered by later observation that New Brunswick is peculiar in this—the poorest land is around the edges, and one must go inland to test the fertility of the province.

At Moncton there is a sudden and surprising improvement. It is the railroad center for the Maritime Provinces, and with its five or six thousand people makes laudable pretenses of metropolitan dignity. There, in the Petitcodiac river, I witnessed the so-called "Bore," which is, indeed, a sight well worth seeing, but has been exaggerated out of all likeness to truth. It may be described briefly as a high tide rushing in suddenly over an outgoing low tide, and the change is so rapid that the river, which at one moment is three-fourths a mud flat and the other fourth a shallow, rippling streamlet, becomes in five minutes a turbid torrent some ten feet deep, and in two or three hours rises nearly to the top of a thirty-five foot wharf.

FREDERICK DE PEYSTER.

Standing on the lower wharf, just before the "Bore" comes in, one is led to conclude that water is somewhat necessary to make a river—that is, in every part of the country except Nevada—for although this is called the Petitcodiac river there is very little water. You look across a mud flat, across the green point beyond it and across the river again below that, for the stream bends there like a U, and all at once the cry is heard, "Here she comes!"

You see across the point the white crest of the "Bore," and the next minute it comes sweeping around the bend, a nearly upright column of water, perhaps six feet high, dashing madly up stream, and soon covering the mud flat with a turbid torrent. The philosophy of it is that the high tide in the Bay of Fundy naturally concentrates its force as the bay narrows, and so the water is "shot" into the inlets as if from the nozzle of a hydraulic engine.

GRAND FALLS.

Why "Bore?" I could get no explanation. One man said because it "bores out the channel;" another thought it was so called because it was a "bore" to the captain whose vessel is caught by it. The last strikes me as correct, for vessels of 2,000 tons burthen come up to Moncton on high tide, while mud scows are grounded at low. Coming in, the captains are at ease; going out they watch every motion, for if they get aground they must remain there till the next high tide. And then it is a chance, for they may "stick in the mud," "lie down," and get in a bad mess generally. Not long ago a small schooner was caught away from the wharf, and by the incoming flood carried up against the railroad bridge and knocked to pieces. So they are quite correct in calling it the "Bore."

From Moncton to St. John the country improved every mile, and the latter city was a lively revelation to me. It may almost claim to be the Liverpool of North America. Its capacious harbor (open all the year) presents a fine array of vessels, and the published figures as to its commerce and the shipping owned by its citizens are quite startling. "St. John owns more shipping than any other city of its size in the world," so say its citizens, so says the gazetteer, and so we shall have to believe till the contrary is proved.

In the city proper are perhaps 28,000 people; in Portland, the big suburb, 16,000 more, and the river St. John, which runs between, is distinguished by a "double cascade." A rocky reef crosses the river there; when the tide is in there is a cascade up stream; when the tide is out there are "falls" down stream. At high tide (twenty-three feet high) there is smooth water and large vessels pass safely over the reef. And all the rest of this sort of thing you can find in any Canadian hand book.

New York. J. H. BEADLE.

Old Egyptian Encaustic Process.

In the older Egyptian mummies the face of the outer casing is usually modeled in relief, in a purely conventional way, but in this latest form of burial under the Roman empire a portrait of the deceased was painted on a very thin piece of wood and then fixed over the dead face. It is very remarkable to find such fine coloring and skillful drawing in work of this late date, which must have been turned out of an ordinary undertaker's workshop. The portraits, both male and female, are most vivid and lifelike; the ladies are mostly dressed in a purple garment, and the men in white, with a red orphrey. The modeling of the flesh is very skillful, and in some cases the coloring reminds one of the Venetian school from its rich depth of tone.

A special point of interest about these paintings is their technical execution in the hot wax, or encaustic process, as it was called. The pigments were mixed with melted wax, and then fixed in their place by holding a charcoal brazier near the surface of the painting, as is described by Vitruvius. The somewhat lumpy impasto of the surface is due to the hardening of the melted wax when the brush touched the cold surface of the panel, and, owing to the non-absorbent nature of the wood, the subsequent application of heat was not able to drive the wax below the surface, as was the case with encaustic painting upon stucco. One of these portraits is noticeable from its ornamental framing with a flowing pattern, formed by pressing wooden stamps upon soft stucco, which was afterward gilt, a process exactly like that which was so often used to decorate mediæval pictures on panel, especially retables, or ancone, as the Venetians called them.—Saturday Review.

The Charm of a Sweet Voice.

I met the other day one of the most fashionable women in the city, and the thing about her that charmed me most was her perfectly trained voice. It was low and melodious, never raised above a certain pitch, but her enunciation was perfectly clear. A sweet, low voice is one of the most seductive charms in a woman, and yet how seldom one is found. The majority of women do not seem to realize this, and one's ears are constantly being tortured by the sound of loud, shrill voices. At a restaurant where I frequently dine comes very often a pretty young woman with her mother, and when I see her coming I want to go. She has a high pitched, cracked, old woman's voice, that takes away my appetite and sets my nerves on edge. At a recent afternoon reception a handsome lady entered and began to talk. As soon as she began every one else stopped and listened, for her voice was so loud and harsh that it drowned every other. She was clever, and what she said was worth listening to, but it was torture to the sensitive ear. The spell of a beautiful face is often broken by a harsh, uncultivated voice, while a sweet voice almost makes a plain face pretty. I would turn round in a crowd to discover the owner of an attractive voice, but I would not turn round in the street to catch a second glimpse of a pretty face. Pretty faces are common enough, one sees them everywhere, but a thoroughly refined, cultivated and sweetly modulated voice is indeed rare.—New York Star.

MODEST CRAVINGS.

SMALL LUXURIES WISHED FOR BY SOME REFINED WOMEN.

Why Diamonds Are Worn—They Excite the Envy of Other Women—Some Curious Opinions of What True Feminine Luxury Means—Turkish Baths and Maids.

Curious, isn't it, what queer ideas some women have of luxury? Probably most men suppose that all women think alike on the luxury question. If asked, they would very likely say that to women luxury with a big L means horses, laces, diamonds and nothing to do. This is looking at it entirely from the outside and taking a general view of it; a wrong way to judge, for there are many details to be considered. Doubtless to many women horses, laces, diamonds and nothing to do does mean luxury; but not to all, for all women do not think alike on this question.

A group of women were talking together the other day, when one of them started the question, What is your idea of luxury? Without a moment's hesitation a very bright woman answered: "The possession of something I don't own." A silence had fallen on the group when the question was asked, but this answer was received with applause. And then they entered into detail. They were all clever, refined women, but none of them owned distended purses. They generally wore pretty gowns, stylish hats and neat gloves and boots, but as a whole they did not swathe themselves in lace, nor did any of them own horses; there were not more than a dozen diamonds among them all, and they were none of them idlers, nor did they wish to be.

One of them, noted for her extreme neatness of dress, said that her idea of luxury meant clean linen twice a day and a Russian bath once a week. She declined to say how often she indulged in clean linen; but no member of the group had ever seen her when her ruches at neck and wrists were not immaculate, nor when there was the tiniest speck on her snowy petticoat. As to the Russian baths, she said that she managed to take two a year, instead of fifty-two. They are expensive luxuries to a woman of small means who has her own bathtub wherein she may splash by the hour without extra charge.

The next woman, who was the envied possessor of a magnificent quantity of hair, said that she wanted a maid to take care of it; that would be luxury to her. The care of her hair required time and strength, and quite exhausted her. But she met with no sympathy. She was promptly told by all the women present that if she could acquire so much hair without a maid she did not need one, and should be willing to undergo any amount of fatigue to be able to possess her "crown of glory." The unlimited supply of clean linen and the baths appealed to every woman present, but they seemed to think that women with hair did not need a maid to take care of it, only women with scant hair needed one to brush and shampoo, and so improve what little they had.

Woman number three said that her idea of luxury was having plenty of pocket money; not money for household expenses, nor for gowns, boots and bonnets, but money to spend on little things. For instance, if she went into a shop and saw anything pretty—a picture, vase, scarf or glove box—she would like to be able to buy it without stopping to ask, Can I afford it? And without stopping to say, I will give up such a thing that I need for this that is so beautiful; I must have it. She cared neither for diamonds nor horses, but she did enjoy spending money, and spending it on pretty things. It was hard for her to pass by all the beautiful things in the shop windows, but her limited purse compelled her to do so more than half the time.

SHE MET WITH SYMPATHY.

The next woman said that she wanted a maid all the time. Shoe buttons were troublesome; dusty dresses played havoc with her temper; neck ruches were refractory, and mending kept her nerves in a constant state of irritation. She said that she could face a great and terrible trial with calmness and courage, but that these little things made her quail. She openly confessed her cowardice in these matters, and said that she wore a pair of shoes until all the buttons were off and then put on another pair, and so on until all of her shoes were buttonless; and so on with mending and brushing. She did not care anything about that stitch in time that saved nine; she never had the time until she was reduced to a state of almost nudity, and then she devoted a day to putting things to rights, and it was equal to a surgical operation.

This woman met with a great deal of sympathy; there are very few women who enjoy these small details of the toilet; they put up with them because they must, but there is hardly a woman who would not have a maid if she could. There are, of course, a few examples of total feminine depravity who have declared against maids; but such cases are rare, and they are generally women who are rich, but too stingy to part with sufficient money to pay a maid. Often, too, the strong minded declare themselves quite independent of any such help; they would scorn to have done for them what they cannot do themselves. But the average woman dearly loves to have a maid; it is such a relief to get rid of one's back hair.

There was another woman who said that her luxurious soul would only be satisfied with an opera box; she was passionately fond of music, and she desired an opera box for every operatic performance during the season. And yet another woman wanted a saddle horse. She did not care for driving; it was tame work; but she liked the excitement of a swift canter three or four times a week.

These are modest luxuries enough, but they represent the ideas of the average woman of refinement. All women do not crave diamonds; they are baubles, and do not add materially to one's comfort; they excite the envy of other women, however, and that is why they are sometimes worn.—New York Star.

Signs and Their Meaning.

The following incident, although it is hard to believe it, actually occurred. A Harvard Annex girl, who came from the country not long since, had a question which bothered her, and happening one day to be in the city, she saw the sign "intelligence office" before her. It was some intelligence she wanted; she walked in and took her seat with a few others on a settee, and only realized what the place was when a lady came up and asked her if she wanted a situation as a chambermaid. She hastily left, making up her mind that not every sign meant just as it read.—Boston Gazette.

The Strong Against the Weak.

Magistrate (to Mr. Ham, the eminent tragedian)—You say that the prisoner assaulted you?

Mr. Ham—Ay, that he did sir. He smote me upon the cheek, and as I turned to flee he scored me hip and thigh.

"Ay, sir; I'm the heavy tragedian of the Great Star combination."

"And the person who assaulted you?"

"Is the light comedian of the same company. I fain would avenge the majesty of the law."—Texas Siftings.

Thirty Years Ago.

Over thirty years ago there was placed upon the market a remedy designed to relieve pain and capable of either external or internal use. From the first it has had wonderful success, and hundreds testify that Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures rheumatism, sore throat, sprains, croup, cuts, bruises and all pains and aches.

"Marriage," remarked Biggs, "is a sort of brief swoon. When I was first married I thought Mrs. B. and I were one; but it wasn't long before we came two."

—The Interior Department opened tenders on Monday for the privilege of cutting cordwood for one year along the Canadian Pacific railway, east of Red river. High prices were received.

—The Knights of Pythias, of Victoria, will have the uniform rank instituted to-night by Col. Bigelow and staff officers, who arrive from the Sound by to-night's boat. The Nanaimo Knights also came down.

—Don't let anyone convince you that Hastie & Lockhart have not the finest line of goods, and at prices equally as fine, until you have made a personal examination for yourselves. No. 62 Government street.

—The fine barque, Ullock, of Liverpool, 779 tons burthen, Capt. Christie, has arrived at the B. C. P. M. Co.'s wharf, New Westminster, having been towed up from the gulf by the steamer Active.

—The first "Practical Talk" to young men was given by Rev. W. W. Baer at the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening. "How and what to read," was the subject. Rev. P. Jenns will speak on "The air we breathe," the evening of Dec. 10th.

—The finest line of perfumes, toilet sets and fancy soaps, etc, is to be had at John Teague Jr's drug store, Poodle Dog block, Yates street. Prescriptions carefully compounded at any hour of the day and night. Telephone call 469.

—A very large audience was present at the theatre last night to witness "Around the world in Eighty days" by the Fleming troupe. In brief, everybody seemed satisfied. The performance will be repeated on Thursday and Friday evenings next.

—Received this day at the Albion House new ulsters and jackets, knitted wool goods, plain and fancy dress materials, winter gloves, hosiery, etc. A full line of blankets, quilts, flannels and staples of every description always on hand.—Brown & White.

PERSONAL.

Items Telling of the Movements of Well Known Persons.

Dr. Cummings has returned from Nanaimo.

W. H. Dorman will leave for California to-morrow.

Capt. Alex. McLean returned south this morning.

Henry Ella returned from a trip to California yesterday.

Ed. Metcalfe and wife returned to their home in Port Townsend this morning.

Rev. Arthur Beanlands returned from the Sound last evening, a visit made on clerical matters.

Mrs. Wm. Angus will arrive home to-night from England. Mr. Angus went up to Vancouver to-day to meet her.

Richard Hunter, of the customs service, is indisposed and confined to his home. Mr. Hunter has now been in the service for nearly 24 years.

J. Keith Wilson and Mrs. Wilson and daughter left for Seattle this morning, where Mr. Wilson takes charge of the branch of the Bank of British Columbia.

Hon. W. H. Dixon and wife, Judge Knowles and J. D. Davis, of Butte, Mont., were arrivals by the Olympian yesterday. Judge Knowles and Mr. Dixon are two of the most prominent lawyers in Montana, and A. J. Davis is president of the First National bank of Butte and reputed to be the wealthiest man in that state.

A Corrupt System.

Bad blood may corrupt the entire system and cause scrofulous sores, swellings, ulcers, salt rheum, erysipelas, sore eyes and skin diseases, as shingles, tetter, etc. Burdock Blood Bitters purifies the blood and cleanses, tones and purifies the entire system. s1-2w.

We commend the merits of Olde Fashioned Cut Plug to lovers of the weed.

The Ferry.

The Islander left Vancouver for Victoria at 2:50 p.m. to-day.

Putting up Shutters.

There is a demoralization going on at present amongst a number of our small traders, many being compelled to put up their shutters. It is a weeding of the wheat from the chaff, a case of the survival of the fittest.—Vancouver World.

Victoria Talent in Demand.

Prof. Sharpe has been re-engaged to conduct a grand concert and organ recital to be held at Seattle on the evening of November 25th. Messrs. Brown and Loseby will also accompany Prof. Sharpe and will assist him in the making a perfect success of the concert.

More Thieving.

A house on Pandora street occupied by two ladies was entered by thieves last night during the absence of the occupants at the theatre, and several small articles of jewelry stolen. The police were notified and have taken steps to recover the property and convict the thief.

Behring Sea Birds.

A fine case of Behring Sea birds, among which are specimens of the auk, sea parrot and sea quail, have been mounted by Mr. Dobinson for the proprietor of the Occidental hotel. The work has been done in a very artistic manner, the birds being life-like in their poses.

In Trouble Again.

An item in a Sound paper states that W. T. Dunstan, formerly a pretended detective of this city, has been run out of Seattle for obtaining money under false pretenses. He ran an office on the "intelligence" plan, but it did not work. It will be remembered that Dunstan failed to appear when summoned before the court here not long ago.

Fall Assizes.

The fall assizes will commence in this city on Monday next. The docket, thanks to the Speedy Trials Act, is a small one. The cases to come up are as follows: Reg. vs. S. Pearce, embezzlement; Reg. vs. J. Dudley, rape; Reg. vs. J. Cassidy, attempted house-breaking; Reg. vs. P. Farrall, stealing from person; Reg. vs. A. Klemberg, larceny.

Elopers Arrested.

There arrived in Seattle on the steamer Premier from Vancouver, B. C., on November 5th, Hans Hanson and Annie La Chappelle. Annie is the wife of Leon Chappelle, of that place, and had deserted her husband and ran away with her lover. The injured husband has followed the guilty pair, who have been arrested and lodged in jail.

Twisted His Ankle.

A young man named George Gosnell while engaged in a friendly wrestling bout with a friend yesterday met with a painful accident to his ankle. At first it was thought to be only dislocated, but on examination by a doctor a small bone was found to be broken. The young man was sent to the hospital after the injured ankle had been attended to and is now getting along nicely.

Arm Broken.

A little three-year-old boy of Mr. J. L. Levy, residing on Vancouver street, near View street, while playing yesterday with other children fell down a small flight of steps. Another young child of the family in attempting to save it with a sister's affection, fell on top of the little fellow in her brave attempt to save her brother. On examining the boy's arm a bone was found to have been broken by the fall.

History of B. C.

A history of British Columbia is being got up in the east in which the names of the pioneers of Victoria will appear. The date which allows a man to be eligible is 1858, and is confined to those living in the city. The names are being gathered at present and are fairly numerous, but not more so than the departed. The history will be of special importance to the rising generation, and if they do half as well as their forefathers they will have done nobly and well.

Obituary.

Aramiah Kalloch, of Mount Vernon, Wash, who fell Thursday night while going on board the steamer Cascade at Yesler's wharf, died Saturday morning at Providence hospital, Seattle, from shock and injuries to the brain caused by striking his head on the piling when he fell, aged 52 years. Deceased was a brother of Rev. Isaac M. Kalloch, whose fight with the De Youngs in San Francisco has become historical.

"Macaulay's Point."

A painting is on exhibition in Hibben & Co.'s window, which has been gazed upon extensively during the past few days. It represents Macaulay's Point in squally weather, and as an amateur effort is fairly well done, though severely criticised by many as being a spot unknown to them with the Olympian range too close to home. The painting has some merit, however, and shows hard work on the part of the artist, S. Bamford. It is valued at $25.

Bob White, the Shootist.

The case of Bob White, who is now confined in the Seattle jail, charged with shooting the Clancy brothers and Jim McCann, at the race track in that city last April, and who was arrested at Portland and brought to Seattle by Deputy Sheriff Woolery on Wednesday last, will be brought before Justice Miller to-day for a preliminary examination. Jas. McCann, a most important witness, who has been in Victoria for some days, has gone over to be present at the trial. White was for several weeks in hiding near this city, but going back to the States was arrested.

Marine Gossip.

The Dochra is taking in ballast, her cargo being nearly all out.

The steamer Princess being floated successfully is now on the Starr ways for an overhaul.

The steamer Isabel commenced a new winter run to-day. Instead of two trips a week to Comox, she will only make one.

The tug Lorne has been taking a rest for a day or two, her engineers improving the time in making everything solid, cleaning boilers, etc. She goes to Vancouver to-morrow to tow a lumber laden ship to sea.

Nanaimo Notes.

A Chinaman committed suicide at Wellington by suffocating himself with charcoal gas.

The new Methodist church is rapidly approaching completion. It will seat 500 people comfortably.

The Nanaimo Tannery building is about completed, and is about the largest building in that city. Mr. Abrams, superintendent of the company, is confident of its success.

A miner named Wm. Brown met with a serious accident last week at No. 3 mine, Wellington. It appears he was engaged working at the pillars when the top coal gave way and fell on top of him, hurting him very seriously.

A Mechanical Sign.

A wholesale dealer on Yates street has in his office a new style of a show card for the advertisement of Empire tobacco. It is an ornamental piece of workmanship, having a decorated base over which is an oblong frame in which are hung several leaves of metal. On these leaves is painted the letters forming the advertisement, both sides of the leaves being covered. In the base is clockwork which actuates the frame, making the leaves swing back and forth, alternately showing the words of the advertisement in gay and lurid colors. The effect is startling to say the least, and to anyone whose mind might be mixed by a too strong imbibition of liquid refreshments, would seem uncanny, the changing of the words seeming to be accomplished without any apparent cause.

A delightful aroma while smoking Olde Fashioned Cut Plug.

TRUE TO LIFE.

James Bateman's Last Letter to His Former Home Before Dying.

The death in this city recently of James Bateman was received in Winnipeg with surprise and sorrow. He was a contractor and a hard working man, but not having met with the success anticipated in Winnipeg, came to this city and if spared, intended to make it his future home. The following is his last letter, in its simplicity sublime, written to Mr. R. L. Richardson of Winnipeg:

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 6, 1889.

DEAR SIR,—Just a few lines to say that I arrived here in Victoria last Friday night, and I am glad to say I am in love with the place. It is one of the prettiest places that I ever saw, and the weather is something delightful. It must be grand here in summer. The gardens have not faded yet; lots of flowers to be seen all round the city, and apples and pears still hanging on the trees. This place is much larger than I thought, with such nice drives and walks; but I got here at the wrong end of the season. All the buildings are about finished for this season, but the people tell me that the dull season only lasts two months. I am about purchasing a piece of land to go into brick making. I find that there will be a good demand next season, therefore I have made up my mind to stay here. If you saw this place I think you would be in love with it. Only a little white frost once in a while, nothing freezing at any time during the winter. I have eaten more fruit in the last few days than in as many months before. Land is very dear here—dearer than in Winnipeg. For acre property, two or three miles from the centre of the city, the prices range from $1000 to $3000; building lots which you can buy in Winnipeg for $100 are selling at from $400 to $600 here. The people here say that they have not had any boom yet, but think there will be one next summer. At any rate land is selling very fast, and people are coming here very fast. I must say that I have not heard anyone grumble about the place, they all praise it.

Yours truly,
JAMES BATEMAN,
42 Kane street, Victoria, B. C.

THAT MUDDY WAY.

Johnson Street, the Impassable, Still in an Awful State.

At the last meeting of the city council His Worship Mayor Grant drew the attention of the street committee to the horrible state of Johnson street, and spoke of the necessity of something being quickly done to remedy it before the fall rains set in. Any one who has occasion to pass along that thoroughfare will coincide with Mayor Grant's opinion, as without doubt Johnson street is in a shocking bad way.

Mud of a tenacious and plastic character lies thick, and plenty of it, and the unfortunate horses that have to pull there must feel relieved when the terra firma of Government street is reached. Mounds of stones and earth encumber the sides of the street, and taken in all it is the worst specimen of a public road to be found in the city. Generally speaking the streets of Victoria are of the best, and compare most favorably with any other city, but Johnson street is an exception and seems to be left entirely to itself. The bad state of it has no doubt been caused by the recent work there. First the work on the sewer, then the waterworks, then the tramway, and now that on the gas mains has been the reason of the vast sea of mud that lies all along it. These very necessary works are imperative to keep pace with the advancement of the city, but surely something should be done to make one of the principal streets more passable, and residents and business men look longingly for the suggestions of the mayor to be carried out.

A PASTOR ABROAD.

Rev. A. Beanlands Preaches Before a Seattle Congregation.

The following is from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer of Monday last: Services were held Sunday in the Young Naturalists' hall on the University grounds. The officiating clergymen was Rev. Mr. Beanlands, of Victoria, B. C. Rev. Geo. L. Fitchett, the regular pastor, has returned to his charge, but his physician advises a longer rest and he will again seek the health which he has lost. The pulpit will be supplied during Reverend Fitchett's absence by rectors from neighboring parishes. Rev. Beanland's text was:

THE ONE THING NEEDFUL.

"Martha, Martha, thou art careful about many things, but there is one thing needful."

He said that one must not judge the effect of these words entirely by the words themselves. Much, probably, was done by Christ to mitigate their severity, by the way in which he said them. He did not intend to discourage Martha, but to tell her something, her ignorance of which was sufficiently shown by her request. We, like Martha, do not find it pleasant to be reminded of the one thing needful. And yet we cannot blind ourselves to the fact that life owes all its charms, all its significance, all its beauty to that one needful thing which we fear will hamper us in our own multiplicity of desires. But we can admire in others, more than we can imitate. We can recognize, when we see it, that requisite and tender life, which no considerations of this world can deter from the following after an ideal righteousness.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

A Resume of Events in the Sporting Arena.

California has another young trotter which promises to be a world beater. At Napa on Saturday Stamboul trotted the mile, with running mate, in 2:12¼ coming within a quarter of a second of reaching the stallion record. He will shortly be trotted to beat the record.

A HIGHLAND GATHERING.

An interesting feature of the latter days of the Paris exhibition was the Highland gathering, the cost of which is estimated at $45,000. The usual Scottish games, tests of strength and endurance took place in which Col. White who had charge of the team proposes to make a trip around the globe with them. He says he will carry off everything at the World's fair in New York with the same men in 1892. At the conclusion of the games in Paris the band played the National Anthem and the crowd shouted Vive la France, Vive l' Ecosse. A contingent sent down from Scotland carried off most of the prizes. What attracted most attention appears to have been a tug of war, open to the world, which narrowed down at last to a contest between the Scottish team, as the following figures will show, was a beauty:

	Height.	Weight.
John M'Allister	6 ft.	16 st.
John M'Pherson	6 ft.	16 st. 4 lbs
James M'Callum	6 ft. 2 in.	16 st. 10 lbs
Archibald Shaw	6 ft. 1 in.	16 st.
James Butler	6 ft. 2 in.	15 st. 6 lbs
Archibald M'Kenzie	6 ft. 3 in.	15 st. 7 lbs
George Arthur	6 ft. 3 in.	17 st. 7 lbs
Alexander Kennedy	6 ft. 2 in.	20 st.
Alexander Bethune	6 ft. 3½ in.	16 st.
William M'Pherson	6 ft. 1 in.	17 st. 7 lbs
Average Height	6 ft. 1¼ in.
Average Weight	16½ st.

DREW THE FORFEIT.

Quinn, the wrestler, drew down his forfeit to-day which he was anxious for McLeod to cover. The money had been posted for some time, but Mr. Quinn thinks McLeod don't want to touch it. "Perhaps he wants a rest," said the popular wrestler. At present there is no match in sight between these two athletes, though Quinn is "thar and loaded for grizzlies."

DAN. M'LEOD.

D. S. McLeod is in town awaiting a settlement of the stakes that he won in his match with Cameron. When everything is settled he intends going east on the trip that he previously intended to, but was detained by making the last match with Cameron.

FOOTBALL.

Vancouver won the football match against New Westminster on Saturday by five goals, three tries and two minor points to one minor point.

To be Moved Back.

The old wooden building on Pandora street, formerly occupied by M. J. Conlin as a blacksmith shop, has been leased by Ald. Goodacre who will use it as a wagon shed in connection with his stables. The building is to be lowered a foot and set back one foot and a half so that it may be on the street line.

Port Angeles.

A dispatch received from Port Angeles to-day states that the survey of the projected line to Gray's Harbor was begun there yesterday.

Will Change Hands.

It is rumored that the schooner Mollie Adams will change hands in a few days. Several parties have been anxious to effect her purchase for some time.

Another for the Fleet.

Capt. Alex. McLean went over to the Sound last night, and it is reported he goes to purchase another schooner for the already large sealing fleet from this port.

Added to the Aviary.

Two more birds have been presented to the park committee for the Zoo. A fine fat live grouse, a present from Mr. Gowley, and a full grown hawk, brought in by an employee of the E. & N. railway, were placed in the aviary this afternoon.

A Wild Report.

A report was in circulation among the Chinese to-day that the steamer Abyssinia had blown up a boiler on the voyage from Hong Kong to Yokohama, killing many of her Mongolian passengers. The report could not be traced to an authentic source.

No Money Back.

Plaintiff Jas. Faulkner, who yesterday brought suit against M. J. Conlan for recovery of stake money over a fake race, got nothing, the decision of the jury not being favorable to him. Some pretty hard swearing was done on both sides, but the decision is now final and plaintiff will have to abide by it.

Robbery at Cache Creek.

On the night of Wednesday last a Chinaman's store at Cache Creek was broken into and property to the value of $1087 stolen, among which were several checks and a quantity of gold dust. No trace of it has been found, but descriptions have been sent to various points and hopes are entertained of finding the thief.

Nanaimo Delegates.

To-day's train from Nanaimo brought down a delegation of Knights of Pythias, all being members of Uniform Rank, Nanaimo Division No. 1. They are: A. A. Richardson, captain; Jas. Cohen Jno. H. Hilbert, Geo. Davis, Charles Fiddick and Geo. Cavalsky. They will officiate at the Uniform Rank installation this evening.

How to Form a Company.

How easy it is to organize a steamboat transportation company is shown by late developments in Seattle. That city now proposes the organization of such an incorporation with a capital stock of $250,000 by the payment of only 10 per cent. of subscriptions to the fund. The subscribers are to be responsible men and their subscriptions, it is announced, will be negotiable at par, while they will be required to pay in only 10 per cent. each year.—Port Townsend Leader.

He was Mixed.

An individual suffering from a too heavy load of rye was gathered in by the police last night. At the time of his arrest he was past that stage of drunkenness when a man can tell his own name, so a blank was left after the charge of d. and d. This morning his brain had cleared up enough to enable him to be sure that his right cognomen was John Jackson. Late last evening he was in doubt and uncertainty but what it might be Jack Johnson instead of John Jackson, but under the latter name he paid a $5 fine, vowing as he left the dock that he would never get so mixed again.

A Chinese Case.

Only one case of importance came before the police court magistrate this morning. It was that of a Chinaman named Ah Lon, charged on remand with assault and robbery on a brother Mongolian. Mr. Helmcken appeared for the defence, and Mr. Hall for the prosecution. The usual crowd of Chinese witnesses were called, who in the most bland and artless manner contradicted each other's statements. The regular gang of highbinders also gathered outside the court railings exhaling a perfume—not of Araby the Blest—and with gaping countenances watching the trial. After nearly four hours of the court's time had been taken up the prisoner was further remanded.

Damage by the Storm.

Reports from different parts of the coast show the storm of Sunday to have been of unusual severity. Eight hundred feet of the Westminster penitentiary wall was blown down and several sentry boxes smashed. A house in the swamp was lifted bodily fifty feet. Some barrels of merchandise were blown from the deck of the steamer Irving and lost. The schooner She, of Lulu island, broke from her moorings and dashed against the piles and sunk. Another schooner is also reported lost. Telephone and telegraph lines are entangled and the roads are blocked with trees. At Port Townsend considerable damage was done to shipping and wharves. Damage is also reported from other parts of the Sound.

FROM GRANITE CREEK.

Cold Weather Retards Mining Operations—Deaths.

The cold weather of the last few days has caused a temporary stoppage of mining on the creek. The days are very fine though, being crisp and clear.

W. Saunders, an old timer, passed away on the morning of the 3rd November, having been ailing for some time. His home is on the Similkameen near Princeton. He was an old Cariboote, but of late years has turned his attention to ranching.

Ah Chong, a Chinaman who is well known by Cariboo men and many on the Mainland, and who has of late years been farming on the Tulameen river near Granite creek, died suddenly. The cause is supposed to be heart disease. Ah Chong was a naturalized British subject.
